MESSAGE FROM CILTM PRESIDENT PROFESSOR TS DR MUHAMMAD ZALY SHAH FCILT

Each year in October, our national budget is revealed. Thus, in this edition, I'd like to discuss the recent budget allocation for the logistics and transportation sector. This budget transcends mere figures; it is about setting the stage for a more effective, productive, and profitable future for everyone involved in our industry.

Next year's budget highlights three main areas: enhancing our infrastructure, investing in our workforce and adopting leading edge technologies. These aren't just theoretical ideas; they form the bedrock of our operations and are crucial to unlocking new opportunities. Let's explore how these investments will influence our industry and our roles within it. The budget has allocated considerable resources for improving our infrastructure, which is the core of our logistics and transportation activities. Visualize fewer delays, seamless operations, and the capacity to meet client demands more efficiently. These enhancements are not merely about accelerating goods movement; they are about boosting our capability to compete globally. By alleviating bottlenecks and enhancing connectivity, we can guarantee that our operations are not just efficient but also robust. This is transformative for us, enabling us to fulfill our commitments to clients and maintain a competitive advantage.

STRONGER TOGETHER

MESSAGE FROM CILTM PRESIDENT PROFESSOR TS DR MUHAMMAD ZALY SHAH FCILT

Equally significant is the budget's focus on workforce development. Investing in TVET training and development is vital for improving the skills and abilities of our workforce. This goes beyond mere technological updates; it's about empowering our workforce to drive innovation and efficiency. By equipping our team with the right skills, we can enhance productivity and operational efficiency, ultimately resulting in greater profitability. This investment in human capital underscores the belief that our people are our most valuable asset. It's about fostering a culture of continuous learning and improvement, where everyone has the chance to grow and contribute to our success.

The adoption of new, leading edge technologies and AI are another crucial aspect of next year's budget. By incorporating the latest innovations, we can transform our operations. This includes everything from automated systems that optimize processes to data analytics that offer insights into our operations. These technologies are not simply tools; they are enablers that allow us to operate smarter, not harder. By leveraging these innovations, we can improve our decision-making, enhance our service delivery, and ultimately deliver better value to our clients and improved returns to our stakeholders. This is about leading in innovation and ensuring that we are always prepared to face tomorrow's challenges.

The logistics and transportation sector encounters various challenges, including fluctuating demand and regulatory changes. This budget confronts these issues directly by supplying the necessary resources to evolve and excel. By prioritizing infrastructure and human capital, we are better prepared to tackle these challenges. This involves discovering innovative methods to address the difficult problems we face and ensuring readiness to capitalize on new opportunities. It's about developing a resilient and flexible industry capable of enduring any adversity and coming out stronger.

MESSAGE FROM CILTM PRESIDENT PROFESSOR TS DR MUHAMMAD ZALY SHAH FCILT

In summary, the 2025 budget represents a major advancement for our sector. It's not solely about figures; it's about investing in our future and guaranteeing we have the tools and resources required for success. By concentrating on infrastructure enhancements and human capital development, we are establishing the foundation for a more efficient, productive, and profitable future. Let us welcome these changes and collaborate to maximize these opportunities. Thank you.

Mandatory urine and blood tests for PSV and GDL license applicants will reduce the prevalence of substance abuse amongst new applicants and renewals of PSV and GDL licenses. Making these tests compulsory will assist detection of PSV, GDL applicants involved in substance abuse.

Although a urine sample is easier to collect and store and transport compared to a blood sample the downside of urine sampling is the relative ease of sample contamination at the point of obtaining the sample, as well as lack of accurate information on the exact levels to which drug abuse occurred.

Mandatory Blood Tests and Random Checks

Blood samples are best indicators of recent substance abuse as the sample is directly drawn from a patient's arm and labelled and sent to the laboratory for analysis. The tighter control procedure for obtaining a blood sample reduces the danger and risk of sample contamination. Hence making blood tests as a mandatory requirement of new PSV and GDL applications and renewals should be a serious policy consideration by our Government.

Even after enforcing compulsory blood tests for renewal as well as new applicants of PSV GDL licenses the current policy of random checks for detection of substance abuse amongst Truck and Bus drivers should continue. Frequent random checks on drivers is a good deterrent as it will encourage Truck and Bus operators to require contract and replacement drivers to undergo blood tests as a pre-condition to obtain valid PSV/GDL licenses before they are employed.

Mandatory blood tests for new applicants combined with stringent and frequent random checking will definitely help to weed out deployment of unlicensed drivers as happened in a recent Tourist Bus crash at Genting.

Blood Test facilities should be available at all Government Medical Clinics

A policy of compulsory blood tests for PSV and GDL applicants should be supported by availability of blood test facilities at all Government run medical clinics (Klinik Kesihatan) throughout Malaysia to make it convenient for Bus and Lorry Drivers to undergo the proposed mandatory blood tests.

INDUSTRY LEAD BODY (ILB) SAFETY DRIVING CENTRE (SDC)

Towards a Nation of Safe Drivers and Riders

There is a lot of hearsay evidence that some private doctors are rubber stamping the current process of medical screening thereby jeopardising the safety of road and public transport users. The Ministry of Health needs to review practise of allowing private clinics to do PSV/GDL medical screening and restrict screening to be done by Government run Klinik Kesihatan only. PSV and GDL drivers are B40 group and they should be supported with blood-testing facility availability at all Government Clinics for their convenience.

Addressing Driver Shortages

In addition to improving the quality and availability of medical screening of truck and bus drivers for substance abuse the acute shortage of drivers and riders needs the attention of our regulatory authorities. Pan Malaysia Bus Operators Associations (PMBOA) and Pan Malaysia Lorry Operators Association (PMLOA) highlighted the issue of acute driver shortages which urgently needs an additional 3500 trained lorry and Bus drivers to address the current shortages.

The Ministry of Human Resources and Ministry of Transport have jointly announced a policy of funding the training of an additional 1000 drivers. Drivers licensed under this program should have a mandatory minimum work period requirement in Malaysia for at least 5 years to ensure they work within the country to address our current Truck and Bus driver shortages.

The call by PMLOA and PMBOA for Government to annually fund PSV and GDL driver training is appropriate to ensure untrained and unlicensed drivers are not driving our Trucks and Busses.

Breast Cancer Awareness: The Importance of Early Understanding – Pink October: By: HASLINAWATI BINTI BESAR SA'AID

Pink October is globally recognized as Breast Cancer Awareness Month, dedicated to spreading knowledge, supporting survivors, and educating people about breast cancer—a disease that affects millions of women worldwide. As we embrace this time of awareness, it's crucial to focus not only on women at risk but also on educating teenagers, young adults, and the next generation about the importance of early detection and breast health.

While breast cancer predominantly affects older women, awareness should start much earlier, beginning with teenagers and young adults. This early education helps foster habits that can lead to lifesaving outcomes in the future. Understanding breast cancer at a young age equips individuals with the knowledge they need to protect themselves and raise awareness in their communities.

Teenagers and young adults are not immune to the risk of breast cancer. Though rare, breast cancer can occur in younger women, and early detection is crucial. Educating this age group about self-examinations, being aware of changes in their bodies, and the importance of routine medical check-ups can empower them to seek help promptly if something seems abnormal. This knowledge can save lives as early-stage breast cancer is much more treatable.

In many cultures, discussing breast health can be uncomfortable. By fostering open conversations about breast cancer awareness among young people, we can begin to break down these barriers. Encouraging young adults to talk about breast health openly and without shame not only normalizes the topic but also empowers them to take action and help those around them.
