Datuk Muhammad Muhiyudin Hj. Abdullah
President, The Chartered Institute of Logistics & Transport
Malaysia

Assalamualaikum warahmatullahi wabarakaatuh
dan salam sejahtera

Dear Members,

Welcome back to our NEWSLETTER. Our editorial team have completed an issue in time to share the highlights from the 20th annual convocation, our Career Fair, Appreciation Dinner, the 10th year anniversary of WiLAT Malaysia as well as the year end hi-tea and networking event we held on the 15th of December, at Empire Hotel in Subang Jaya.

This issue we feature the 20th annual convocation. It was a great pleasure to have the convo in person again, and to host 1200 people at the event.

In my speech I touch on the following points to convey the Institute's message to Graduates and their family members.

The Chartered Institute of Logistics and Transport, and the faculties from all the institutions that are accredited by us are committed to providing our students with the best possible education to prepare them for their future careers in the field of logistics and supply chain management.

This is one of the largest and most dynamic sectors of the modern economy that has proven itself when the pandemic had hit us in 2020.

This robust sector provides not only jobs but a myriad of other opportunities in digital sphere.

In order to prosper in this fast-moving job market our students need to be practically grounded and to be able to work effectively; they also need to be flexible and creative, and to have the ability to think critically and to reflect on how they relate to their colleagues and customers.

Logistics and Supply Chain Management are the largest and most dynamic sectors of the modern economy
that has proven itself when the pandemic had hit us in 2020

Asia is the new playing field for large flow of investments and is experiencing a massive upsurge in logistics activities, and as it grows this sector is becoming increasingly diverse as technology develops new expectations and experiences.

While logistics confers undoubted benefits, not least in terms of well-functioning economies, it also raises questions about sustainability and climate action. Today's professionals need to combine a sense of entrepreneurship with an awareness of their social and environmental responsibilities, as well as an ability to appreciate cultures other than their own.

To meet the needs of both our students and future employers, the members of the institute are constantly thinking about not only what they teach but also how they teach.

Employability is central to our program and to equip our students to meet the challenges of the industry we need to provide them with appropriate practical lessons and to enhance their understanding through experiential learning.

In order to support these aims we need also to examine and recreate the knowledge base that informs our teaching and thus research is increasingly becoming essential to our programme.

I am pleased to say that we are building on the previous successes and the Chartered Institute of Logistics and Transport globally are committed to constantly upgrading and updating the curriculum to fulfil the needs of our Future Logisticians.

Today's professionals need to combine a sense of entrepreneurship with an awareness of their social and environmental responsibilities, as well as an ability to appreciate cultures other than their own.

Malaysian Experience in the Logistics Support and Supply Delivery for Peace Keeping Operations in Lebanon

This article is a memoir of a former Chief Logistics Officer - MALCON East 4 on his experience in the logistics support and supply delivery to Malaysian Contingent (MALCON East 4 and MALCON West 2) during his tour of duty to Lebanon under the United Nations Peace Keeping Operations (UNPKO) in Lebanon from April 2009 to April 2010. This article covers the overview of peace keeping operations, concept of logistics support and operations, mission support plan, challenges and the lessons learnt.

With the end of Cold War, the international community has placed the United Nations (UN) at the centre stage in its effort to resolve the outstanding tensions and to calm newly emerging dispute. The Peace Keeping Operations under the UN flag has been seen as the most effective technique and method, by which the troops have been developed mainly by the United Nations to control and resolve armed conflicts.

Malaysian diplomacy has always vigorously advocated cooperation among nations to achieve and sustain peace and stability at the regional and global levels, and that is why there has been a long succession of Malaysian Battalion (MALBATT) and observers in the peace keeping operations of the United Nations.

Beam Me Up, Scotty! - An anecdotal account of an entrepreneur transforming a traditional training business into an online e-learning platform

It was always there at the back of my mind. Somehow, I had to get us onto e-learning. I didn't know how, or what, or where to begin, but I knew it was simply the place I wanted us to go. The world was changing fast. Every day in every way I felt the pulse of change but I was often so distracted, running the business and chasing planes in different airports, on the go almost daily.

I grew weary of all this traveling, striking out from one airport to another, waiting at the boarding halls, always waiting. I would barely be around in my office for 10 days in a month. The rest of the 20 days went by flying, literally flying, waiting, teaching, waiting, flying, waiting again at the cab line to make my way back home.

It was especially difficult when one of the kids fell ill and I had to leave home for work. Those were the moments when I would wish so desperately that I could just click a button on my transponder and beam myself into the classroom, much like how Captain Kirk did in Star Trek whenever he asked Scotty to beam him up.

If you believe in the law of attraction then you'd have thought that I wished it real hard. Then Bang we're into year 2020 and there's news about a virus outbreak in China. Honestly, at that point I just thought it was one those SARS things that had occurred way back in 2003 and that this too would be contained within 6 months. I was sure this wouldn't even reach our shores and continued with my life in the fast lane.

Malaysian shipping struggling to catch up, while ports 'anchor aweigh' from troubled waters

Malaysia's Maritime industry had a mixed development in 2022, with the shipping business slowly steaming in rough waters, attempting to recover from the hard knocks of the Covid-19 pandemic, and rebuilding it amid a lack of directional stability. However, the ports have started gaining momentum.

The Malaysian ports, especially those with greater exposure to the global supply chain, are seen to be consistently improving their efficiency and capacity to compete with regional players, while simultaneously embedding digitalisation.

Relief for shippers as freight costs dip to near pre-pandemic levels

AFTER more than two years of exceptionally high freight rates in a tight capacity market, shippers are finally getting some relief. In the latter half of the year, shipping rates for both dry bulk carriers and container ships have come off the highest levels triggered when the Covid-19 pandemic disrupted the supply chain, causing port congestion, shortage of shipping containers and increased blank sailings by carriers.

Heading into 2023, shipping players and analysts are expecting global freight rates to fall further due to the greater availability of freight capacity globally and weaker freight volumes as the global economy deteriorates.

PFFA's cargo volume set to increase

Here's Why Amazon Wants To Kill the Barcode

Robots may be the future, but robotic arms are apparently no good at using the good ol' barcode. Barcodes can be hard to find and can be affixed to oddly shaped products, something robots can't troubleshoot very well.

As a result, Amazon said Friday that it has a plan to kill the barcode.

Using pictures of items in Amazon warehouses to train a computer model, the e-commerce giant has developed a camera system that can monitor items flowing one-by-one down conveyor belts to make sure they match their images.
